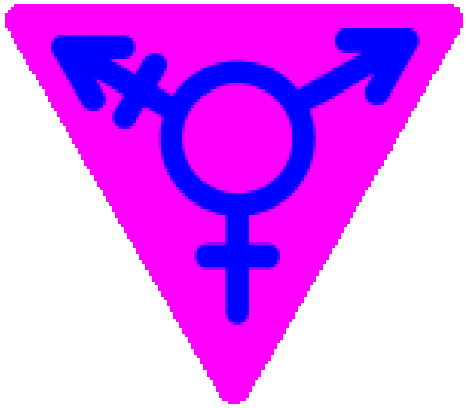
Gender Identity and Sexuality

Fall 2015

MWF 11:30 to 12:25

CRN: 86896



This course will study alternate presentations of gender in different cultures around the world through history. By presenting an international perspective, it fosters a global outlook on gender. With an emphasis on historical and cultural context, Gender Identity and Sexuality will introduce students to the social construction of gender, as well as to biological arguments about sexual and gender differences. Multiethnic issues will be ongoing concerns as the course is presented during the semester.
