MEET CHELSEY AND BETHANY!

Chelsey, what do you think defines what it means to be a sorority woman?
To me being a sorority woman is not all about getting to wear the letters and show people who you are. It’s about making a difference in people’s lives and becoming a better person. Sorority life gives you so many opportunities to be involved with the community but also your other sisters. It’s about ritual and how you apply what you learn about your sorority.

Bethany, what do you think is the most important attribute you have gained/learned from being a sorority woman?
Before being in a sorority, I was shy, timid, and did not want to leave the house. Now that I am in a sorority, I find myself wanting to be involved on this campus.
