PETITION FOR WAIVER

Statement of Request
Basis Upon Which Waiver is Sought

This Petition for Waiver is submitted pursuant to the Tennessee Heritage Protection Act of 2016. In accordance with Tennessee Code Annotated §4-1-412(c), the Tennessee Board of Regents (TBR) and Middle Tennessee State University (MTSU) seek to remove the name of the structure on the campus of MTSU currently designated as Forrest Hall and to rename it the Army ROTC Building.

The structure was built in 1954 to house MTSU's Army Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) program. It was dedicated in 1958 when the name Forrest Hall became official. The building was named after Lieutenant General Nathan Bedford Forrest, a Confederate officer known for his military tactical genius and his ties to the middle Tennessee region. Forrest is also associated with the formation of the Ku Klux Klan.

Debate over the building's name occurred periodically during periods of national discussion about Confederate visual images and symbols on public property. In the summer of 2015, Dr. Sidney A. McPhee, President of MTSU, determined that this issue must be deliberated and appropriate actions taken. In October 2015, Dr. McPhee appointed the 17-member Forrest Hall Task Force (Task Force) to engage the community in discussion concerning the name of this building. The Task Force included MTSU faculty, alumni and students, and citizens from the surrounding community. (Attachment 1) The Task Force was charged with recommending whether the building should be renamed; the name retained but with added historical perspective; or, that no action or change be taken. Dr. McPhee asked that the University's priority of recruiting, retaining and graduating students, and preparing these graduates for service, scholarship and leadership in this state and around the world guide their work and inform their recommendation.

The Task Force held an organizational meeting on November 12, 2016. Public forums were held on December 1, 2015; February 24, 2016; and, March 24, 2016, in order to obtain as many perspectives as possible. Public input was received at these three meetings and at the March meeting the Task Force considered written position statements submitted by campus and community organizations. (Attachment 2) The Task Force held open deliberations on April 14 and April 19, 2016.

By letter dated April 19, 2016, the Task Force recommended that the name of Forrest Hall be changed (Attachment 3). On April 28, 2016, Dr. McPhee accepted this recommendation with the addition that a historical timeline, with primary source set, be developed and housed in the Albert Gore Research Center on the MTSU campus. (Attachment 4) At its quarterly meeting, the TBR, on June 24, 2016, approved the MTSU proposal to change the name from Forrest Hall to the Army ROTC Building. (Attachment 5)

In explaining the basis for his decision, Dr. McPhee stated in his April 28, 2016 letter:

It is clear that there are many wide-ranging and contradicting views about the life and legacy of Confederate Lt. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest. I do not feel it is my role to discern the appropriateness or relevance of his actions prior, during or after the Civil War. It was appropriate, however, for me to assess whether the decision made in the middle of the 20th Century to name the building for General Forrest remains in our best interest in the second decade of the 21st Century.

And, in my view, the values and goals we share in 2016 as a comprehensive university with international reach are not best reflected by retaining a name affixed in 1958 when we were a small local college that rarely extended beyond our region. ...

We now live in a time and circumstance that our predecessors perhaps could have never imagined. When Forrest Hall was dedicated in 1958, we were still Middle Tennessee State College and boasted an enrollment of just 2,539 students. We were decades away from the far-reaching and inclusive opportunities that would become our hallmark. And, as was common of that time, images and references of General Forrest were used routinely throughout the University and its activities.

Dr. McPhee cited TBR Policy 4:02:05:01 Naming Buildings and Facilities and Building Plaques which specifies that, when considering the naming of a structure, special consideration be given to the association of the individual to the institution. (Attachment 6) Unlike other buildings on the MTSU campus named for individuals, Lt. Gen. Forrest has no particular connection to MTSU, nor has he made a significant contribution to the field of education, government, science or human betterment. (Attachment 7)

Dr. McPhee also acknowledged that beyond affixing Lt. Gen. Forrest's last name to the building and a small plaque outside the hall that states, "Forrest Hall 1954," no other efforts to educate the community about Lt. Gen. Forrest's historical impact and military contributions exist. To rectify that void, Dr. Carroll Van West, the Tennessee state historian and a distinguished faculty member at MTSU, will prepare a timeline of the career of Lt. Gen. Forrest to include the following chronological periods:

- Birth, early life, and marriage
- Business career in Mississippi and Memphis .
- Civic career in Memphis
- Service in the Civil War: promotions in rank and significant engagements
- Farewell address in 1865
- Post-war business and political career

This Petition for Waiver respectfully requests the Commission to honor the decision of the TBR and MTSU, and allow for the renaming of Forrest Hall to become the Army ROTC Building. We do not seek in doing so to rewrite history, but rather, to place it within its proper context. Renaming this building will best align the University's priority of recruiting, retaining and graduating students, and preparing these graduates for service, scholarship and leadership in this state and around the world, and at the same time will better reflect the purpose of the structure itself – to house and support one of the nation's top programs for the training and preparation of future officers of the United States Army. Further, providing the historical context of the life of Lt. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest will continue our institution's tradition of educating the campus and the community to better understand this period of history.

We believe this Petition for Waiver establishes a compelling public need to rename the building, thus providing clear and convincing evidence of a material or substantial need for the granting of a waiver.

Derek Frisby,

On behalf of the MTSU Talented Tenth Student Activist Coalition, we feel that is highly inappropriate to glorify a man that has been infamously known for his general tactics in the Civil War. We stand in our decision and we demand that the name of the military building be changed. The naming of the military building came about in retaliation to the Brown vs. Board of education case. The name change happened in 1958, 55 years ago. It's time that the university renames the building to someone from a newer era that also embraces diversity. Nathan Bedford Forrest was nothing more of a serial killer murdering anyone that wasn't Anglo-Saxon- particularly blacks. He would not have supported the idea of integrating this university and it's disgusting the university and the community has kept him on the building for all these years.

General Nathan Bedford Forrest was not only the first Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, but he also led one of the most bloodiest battles of the civil war at Fort Pillow, Henning, Tennessee. <sup>i</sup>On April 24, 1864, both union and confederate soldiers recalled it as being a "massacre" of the union soldiers. However, it wasn't the battle that was gruesome, <sup>ii</sup>it was the aftermath. Forrest ordered his men to show no mercy. A soldier recalled in a letter saying, <sup>iii</sup>"Negroes would run up to our men, fall upon their knees and with uplifted hands scream for mercy but they were ordered to their feet and then shot down...Forrest ordered them shot down like dogs." In addition to that, union soldiers were crucified being nailed to their tents and set on fire. After Forrest was under questioning for his actions, one of his defenses were, his men were out of control and he had no control of that- but they celebrated the "victory" first. In all, 64% of blacks and 33% whites were massacred that day.

This battle is just one of the few of the horrendous things that he has done, especially to the minority community. Living in this day and era, how is it possible to have someone with such negative connotations on our campus? According to our university, <sup>iv</sup>True Blue is embodying the core values of engagement in the community, committing to reason and not violence, honesty and integrity and RESPECT FOR DIVERSITY. Having Nathan Bedford Forrest on our diverse campus, doesn't represent the <sup>v</sup>29.7% of the minority students here. If the university and community thought of Forrest so highly, then why can't the building be shown on tour guides?

<sup>vi</sup>Three presidents have come from Tennessee: Andrew Jackson, Andrew Johnson, and James Polk. There are approximately 36 monuments/ recognitions in Tennessee of Nathan Bedford Forrest and that is far more than anyone in the US. We have to stop living in the past and focus on the now and the future. If preserving history is the issue then put his history and "legacy" in a book like everyone else. This man doesn't deserve so much praise- especially when most of his reputation was made blood, massacres, and war. If MTSU is so diverse and respectful of their students, prove it.

POSITION PAPER ON FORREST HALL

History, whether pursued as an academic discipline by a student or followed as a topic of interest by an individual, depends on sources for evidence to support the claims made by historians. These sources must be subjected to examination to demonstrate their reliability and veracity. To allow readers to examine the reliability and veracity of their claims historians add footnotes/endnotes to their works. The process of examination, substantiation, and verification is crucial for reading, writing, and teaching history which reveals the truth about the past as opposed the proliferation of mere propaganda. Propaganda makes claims which cannot be verified or substantiated. The same is true of legend, folklore, and tradition for these too make claims not subject to verification, even though these claims may be widely believed and accepted.

Today a book written by a living author about the Civil War would properly be designated as a “secondary source.” A secondary source is any source about an event, period, or issue in history that was produced after that event, period, or issue has passed. Secondary sources produced by those recognized as an expert in the area come with a certain built-in “credibility.” But it is a serious mistake to believe that a secondary source is reliable merely because of the pedigree of its author. The author of a reliable secondary source must rely on, and must cite, primary sources.

A primary source is any original source that comments on, testifies, or bears witness to the time period of its own production. Primary sources are the raw material of history, they are what historians must rely on as they try to learn what happened in the past and what an event meant in the context of its times.

The main argument of the group currently seeking to change the name of Forrest Hall is that Nathan Bedford Forrest was the head of the Ku Klux Klan. From 1865 to 2016 no historian has ever produced a single piece of evidence which can be subjected to the process of investigation, verification and documentation described above which proves that Forrest was ever the head of the Ku Klux Klan. Many such allegations have been made, and are still being made, but no reliable documentation, subject to verification, has ever been produced to establish the veracity of these claims. Secondary sources abound which accuse Forrest of Klan involvement but no primary source has ever been produced. Of course, all reputable historians reject out of hand the assertion that “Forrest founded the Klan.” The names of the founders of the Klan are well known to historians and Forrest is not among them.

One often cited piece of evidence that Forrest was involved with the Klan is the Appendix to the book The Artillery of Nathan Bedford Forrest, written by John Morton in 1909. Morton commanded Forrest's artillery during the war. The Appendix to this book recounts a story in which Morton is said to have inducted Forrest into the Klan and then sent Forrest to a meeting at the Maxwell House Hotel in Nashville. At best this account can be considered anecdotal evidence concerning Forrest. The account is not from the pen of John Morton but was written by the Reverend Thomas Dixon of Boston, Massachusetts. Dixon was a novelist whose most famous work is The Clansman, a book which became the basis for the movie, "The Birth of a Nation." In short, the account was produced by an admirer of the Klan who was dealing second-hand with an event more than forty years old. The Morton material does not qualify as a primary source. [1]

Andrew Nelson Lytle, in his Bedford Forrest and His Critter Company, is among the first writers to popularize the legend of Forrest as head of the Klan. Lytle tells the story of a meeting which was said to have taken place at the Maxwell House Hotel at which Forrest was chosen as Grand Wizard, but Lytle provides no documentation as to who was present, who selected Forrest, and does not even provide a date at which this was supposed to have happened. Lytle also recounts a story that the leadership of the Klan was first offered to Robert E. Lee, a story equally unsupported by a shred of historical evidence and one not believed by any reputable historian. [2]

Stanley F. Horn, in his Invisible Empire: The Story of the Ku Klux Klan, 1866-1871, follows the same interpretation used by Lytle. But Horn consistently uses such phrases as "There is a story to the effect", "It has always been understood", and "The story has always been told", which means Horn is recounting anecdotes, not citing primary sources. The discrediting of Horn's claim concerning Forrest is made complete when Horn himself says that while he believes Forrest was the head of the Klan "there is no documentary evidence" to support his claim. [3]

Allen W. Trelease deals with the Klan in a much more scholarly fashion than either Lytle or Horn. In his White Terror: The Ku Klux Klan Conspiracy and Southern Reconstruction, Trelease writes "There has never been any serious doubt that the first and only Grand Wizard was General Nathan Bedford Forrest." Trelease cites Horn as one of his sources, thus damaging his argument, and the author then wrecks his argument by admitting "A good deal has been written about the Klan's further organization at the top levels, but most of it lacks substantiation and much of it is clearly fictitious." [4]

The two most recent scholarly biographies of Nathan Bedford Forrest are A Battle From the Start by Brian Steel Wills and Nathan Bedford Forrest: A Biography by Jack Hurst. Both these works claim that Forrest was the leader of the Klan but neither offers more than circumstantial evidence, and they offer nothing which meets the standard professional criteria of documentation and investigation.

Wills, after labeling Forrest as the Grand Wizard, then admits "There is some question as to whether he was actually the Grand Wizard" and points out that the family of George W. Gordon claims their ancestor was the head of the organization. Wills also uses as evidence of involvement with the Klan "evasive answers" Forrest gave to a Congressional Investigating Committee in 1872.

[5]. Wills fails to report that the conclusion reached by the committee. This investigation will be dealt with later in this paper.

Hurst also connects Forrest to the leadership of the Klan but cites Andrew Lytle as his major source. [6] Lytle, as we have seen, provides no viable proof on which Hurst can rest his case.

Despite his assertion that Forrest was head of the Klan, Hurst concludes his evaluation of Forrest's racial attitudes by saying "over the length of his lifetime Nathan Bedford Forrest's racial attitudes probably developed more, and more in the direction of liberal enlightenment, than those of most other Americans in the nation's history." [7]

While older scholarship alleges, but cannot prove, that Forrest was involved with the Klan the most recent scholarship supports the position that Forrest cannot reliably be linked to the leadership of the Klan. Elaine Frantz Parsons, in her Ku-Klux: The Birth of the Klan During Reconstruction, severely criticizes Trelease and others for their unsubstantiated claims concerning Forrest and she concludes "There is also no compelling contemporary evidence to establish that Forrest ever exercised any leadership function . . ." [8] Parsons received her Ph.D. from The Johns Hopkins University and is a professor at Duquesne University where she not only teaches courses in U.S. History but also serves as Director of the Women's and Gender Studies Center.

There is one primary source of evidence dealing with Forrest and the Klan. It is the hearings conducted by a joint committee of the United States Congress in 1871. A federal law had just been passed making any association with the Klan a serious offense and vigorous efforts were being made to suppress the Klan. Forrest was called to testify before this committee on June 27, 1871. Although some historians have characterized his responses to the committee as "evasive" and, although it is obvious that Forrest knew many things about the Klan, the conclusion of the body was that Forrest could not be connected to the Klan. [9]

Despite all the claims that Forrest was the head of the KuKlux Klan no historian, from the end of the Civil War to the present day, has produced evidence which can withstand the scrutiny normally applied by academic historians. One may hold suspicions about Forrest, one may point to anecdotal or circumstantial evidence concerning him, but history requires verifiable proof, documentary evidence. Where is the evidence that Forrest was head of the Klan? It does not exist. No historian has produced such evidence, a Congressional Investigating Committee cleared Forrest of involvement, contemporary scholarship exonerates Forrest; only myth, legend, and folklore persist in making what is clearly an unsubstantiated claim.

Throughout time, in the absence of facts, people have tried to explain the past by utilizing legends. The ancient Egyptians, the Greeks and Romans, the Native Americans all did this; we of the 21st Century do the same. Middle Tennessee State University has a moral obligation to uphold the highest standards of the academic disciplines which make up its seven Colleges. To change the name of Forrest Hall in response to legends, folklore, and myth would violate that moral obligation. The University must follow the demonstrated, proven evidence regarding Forrest. If the University decides to add signage to further interpret and explain the name of Forrest Hall let the University make sure that it adheres to the facts. Anything less would be a betrayal of its reason for existence.

Dear Committee,

Since 1998, MT Solidarity has remained a highly active student activist group on MTSU's campus. We have been active in numerous causes across the last 18 years and have attracted support from students, faculty, and community members. One of these causes has consistently been the controversy surrounding the name of the ROTC building, Nathan Bedford Forrest Hall.

Members of MT Solidarity have been proponents of changing the name of Forrest Hall since there was an MT Solidarity. Many of our members have been actively involved in the group Change the Name of Nathan Bedford Forrest Hall (the most vocal group advocating a name change over the past year). The two groups are intimately tied together.

MT Solidarity fully supports a name change of Forrest Hall.

No space will be wasted debating the character of the Confederate general, slave owner, and KKK member Nathan Bedford Forrest. We believe that particular discussion isn't particularly relevant to the current and past issues surrounding the naming of the ROTC building.

What is important is why the building was named as such. The reasons for the name are deeply rooted in MTSU's past embrace of white supremacy and opposition to desegregation. The building was affectionately referred to as Forrest Hall beginning in 1954, the year of Brown v Board. It was officially named in 1958 while desegregation of campus was held off until 1961. While not officially stated, it is clear that the naming of the building and the intense culture on campus of celebrating Forrest were used to intimidate an unwanted black student population.

Numerous protests against Confederate iconography and symbolism followed recorded as early as 1968 in the Gore Center on campus. Many Confederate symbols have been removed from campus with the notable exception of Forrest Hall.

The last protest against the name was only stopped by pressure from donor groups such as Daughters of the Confederacy, a group known to have white supremacist ties. The current round of protests has hit a similar wall with the main opposition to a name change coming from off campus.

MTSU has proven its unwillingness to legitimize the concerns of black students on campus by delegating the issue of the name change to a committee with little authority stacked with many opposing the name change. The public meetings set up by this committee have been packed with far fewer students than community members, even the meeting that took place on campus. These public forums have set up a toxic atmosphere and put the students distressed by the reverence for a slave owner on their campus on the defensive from vicious racist attacks by many community members attending these forums. The last public forum subjected the black students attending and protesting to a barrage of racist insults and heavy police presence clearly designed to silence those opposing the committee process.

To pretend that a “rational debate” can be had between pro-Confederate groups and black students on campus is ridiculous at best. The entire committee process has legitimized highly racist positions under the guise of “preserving history” or “respecting a military hero.” To have repeated public forums in which white community members deny the claim of feelings of racial oppression being made by black students is to uphold the systemic racism so very prevalent in MTSU’s past.

The lack of engagement from those holding high office on campus demonstrate the how little black students and other students of color mean to the administration. Continuing to preserve Confederate symbolism on campus despite decades of student opposition invites the type of visceral responses seen at both public forums.

MT Solidarity urges the committee, President McPhee, and all other relevant parties to change the name of Nathan Bedford Forrest Hall, change it to Veterans’ Hall, name it after a former student veteran, or simply call it the ROTC building. Whatever is chosen, the current name must go if MTSU wishes to ever seriously uphold its supposed commitment to providing a diverse and safe campus for its student population.

As student members of the MTSU Collegiate Chapter of NAACP, we are heavily affected by the presence of Nathan Bedford Forrest's legacy appearing on this diverse campus in this day and age. As noted, Nathan Bedford Forrest was the 1st grand wizard of the Ku Klux Klan and fought to keep the minority segregated from white privilege: education, finances/economics, proper health care, etc. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), is dedicated to civil and economic justice and we feel that is highly inappropriate that a man with an infamous reputation is allowed to be recognized on this campus. Since we are a diverse campus, students of the minority should feel welcomed among all aspects of their educational institution. The fact that the military building was named after Forrest in retaliation of Brown vs. Board Education and the integration of school systems is representative of a past that is not relevant for 2016 where diversity should be revered and respected. It is inappropriate as well as insensitive to honor a person who practiced discrimination and that includes not only the military building at MTSU, but also the Nathan Bedford Forrest bust at the Tennessee State Capitol and any other public monument. We want to be a university that welcomes students, staff and faculty of all backgrounds and ethnicities.

Dear committee,

On the evening of June 17, 2015, a young white supremacist named Dylan Roof murdered 9 African Americans at the Emanuel African Methodist Church in Charleston, South Carolina. Roof who had been photographed with not only White supremacist emblems and symbols, but also the Confederate "battle flag," (a flag that was never adopted or formerly recognized by the confederacy, and didn't gain popularity until after the civil War in the early 20th century by segregationists and members of the Ku Klux Klan) helped stir a national debate and awakening of the link between confederate symbols and their use in modern day racism, when the South Carolina state house the following day flew the Confederate "battle flag" over their Confederate monument, due to a law that prohibited its removal without a two thirds vote from the state legislature.

These events became the synthesis that brought students, alumni, faculty, and community members to form a group focused on the removal of Nathan Bedford Forrest's name from their campus, and to finally help put MTSU's racist past behind it, instead of forcing its African American students to live through it every day. We at Change Forrest Hall demand the name be taken down for the following reasons:

1. The actual naming of the building had nothing to do with Forrest, himself, but was rather a strategic maneuver to defy the struggles of the Civil Rights Movement at the time and to help further the white supremacist agenda of keeping schools segregated. This is proven not only by the time period at which this building was named, but also the actions the school took. The Supreme Court passed Brown V. Board of Education in 1954 requiring the complete desegregation of schools in America. "Oddly" enough the Confederate "battle flag" at the South Carolina state house began to fly outside its windows that very same year, along with many of the state governments in the South completely refusing to desegregate their schools. Here is where we tie MTSU and Forrest Hall into this clearly racist narrative, which follows the historical attempts at maintaining the segregation of schools. Forrest Hall was built in 1954, but was not officially named "Forrest Hall" until 1958. That being said, it was always known as Forrest Hall. At the same time, Confederate "battle flags," Nathan Bedford Forrest clubs, monuments, and even the mascot and sports teams were named and built to maintain the white pride and the racist heritage these people embraced. MTSU didn't desegregate until 1961, 7 years after Brown V. Board of education. But even then the racist tensions remained high at the university, with African American students having to endure not only the monuments and symbols of the first grand wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, but also the overt display of racism from their fellow white students with a cross being burned in the Dean's yard, a fraternity that had a lynching party outside of their frat house, and the constant display of confederate flags at football games. It has taken many years, and many struggles from students, faculty, alumni, and community members to destroy the institutionalized racism MTSU built up in those years, and it is now the time and all of our responsibilities to finally put this racist past to rest, and to continue furthering diversity and brotherhood throughout MTSU's campus.

2. MTSU is a school that promotes diversity, a word that is promoted in its True Blue pledge. But if the Forrest Hall name remains, this completely undermines what the university has been promoting. It is utterly ridiculous and disrespectful that a campus whose African American population that has exceeded over 20% of the students enrolled at MTSU are being forced to pass a building that was named from a racial intolerance to their race. MTSU has vowed to these students to be a safe place that not only helps to further their careers and education, but to enrich their lives and instill values that will aid them for years to come. As long as this name remains, this promise, this "True Blue" pledge that the school advertises so effectively, is completely dismantled with the very existence of Forrest Hall.

You have heard from us many times over the past year, and this fight does not stop here. There is only one solution to fixing this problem, and that is removing the name of Forrest Hall from MTSU's campus. Any other action, or "middle ground" will only further elevate the racial tensions this school has maintained for so many years. There are very few things that are as black and white as this problem you are now facing, and let us tell you, you are either against racism, or you support it with the decision you make on the naming of this building. The middle holds no ground.

TO THE FORREST HALL COMMITTEE (MTSU):

I am just barely old enough to remember when the small black-and-white television screen was filled with the witch hunts of the Joe McCarthy era...a time when the word "communism" triggered public condemnation. Many reputations were unfairly slandered. Much of the tolerance and teamwork that made us Americans was sacrificed. Recovery was slow. Today the "trigger words" are "racism" and "slavery" and the victim is history...our shared history as one people.

A hundred years ago the Rutherford community worked, lobbied, schemed and invested to bring the MTSU predecessor to this site. In all likelihood this would not have happened as it did if not for Nathan Bedford Forrest. The initial property where MTSU sits today was donated for this purpose by a direct descendant of one scheduled to die on July 13, 1862. Know your own history...the name Joseph Black is on a marker at the University gate on East Main Street.

It is easily understood why the school in its early years would adopt as its symbol and mascot the heroic image of Forrest, whose courage, sacrifice and skill had saved and freed the ancestors of the community. In the early 1940's the State Teachers College at Murfreesboro, predecessor of MTSU, seriously considered renaming the school Forrest College. The popular name may have been adopted except for the departure of over half the student body for service in World War II.

For as long as any of us can remember, this community and the university have enjoyed and promoted a mutually supportive relationship. Local fans have cheered and suffered with the changing fortunes of our athletic programs. The business community has welcomed student commerce and provided jobs, internships and charitable funding. Major donors have subsidized both program and facility expansion. Government and non-profit entities currently offer research and internship opportunities. History students, for example, have unique opportunity for internships and research at antebellum sites like Oaklands and the Sam Davis Home.

Today it is obvious that this relationship has been damaged...not destroyed but clearly damaged by campus based conduct that has from the outset been misdirected, offensive, threatening and disrespectful. It appears to most of us that the student conduct has been allowed, if not encouraged, by some of the faculty and administration. An early demonstration was attended by the University President who seemed not at all concerned that his apparent endorsement and attendance turned out only 30 students (according to estimation by sympathetic media) on a campus of approximately 24,000. At the first public forum, the most profane and inflammatory rhetoric came from a faculty-affiliated individual.

The community certainly learned from these forums. We learned that those who are claiming to be offended by the historic name have no reluctance to offend others with their coarse and disrespectful language and conduct. We also learned that the term "diversity" for these few does not mean tolerance for a wide range of beliefs and backgrounds. As used by these immature and undisciplined students, the term is heavy with racial animus and demands “only what we want.” (An argument that has to be presented profanely and loudly is a weak argument.)

Never before in modern times has this community been burdened by racial controversy and conflict such as is now seen. During the difficult 1960's, when others struggled, this community quietly and peacefully desegregated. Thanks to the local leadership, black and white, it was accomplished through mutual respect and cooperation. When a busload of “freedom riders” stopped in front of a segregated restaurant on SE Broad, they were met as they unloaded by a black businessman and community leader, owner of Scales & Sons Funeral Home. He advised that there were no race problems in this town, and if there ever were, they would be resolved without outside help. In blunt terms he told the group to get back on the bus and head out of town. They boarded and left.

When all black Holloway High School was closed and the students enrolled at Central, a pretty good Holloway football team was merged with a pretty good Central team. That year they were state champions. There was no team “diversity,” just colorblind teamwork.

“Racism” was explained to me by Dr. Martin Luther King during a personal conversation in 1966. I asked him about the “black power” advocates who were then disavowing his peaceful methods and calling him an “uncle Tom.” He observed that anyone who wears a button or waves a banner saying “I am black!” or “I am white!” is telling us that they view and react to everything based upon color. “That’s racism,” he concluded. Dr. King urged us to treat all as brothers and equals regardless of color. What was said and displayed at the forum last month would have saddened Dr. King.

We are all in this together. The slave economy began with the African chiefs who were constantly warring and taking hostages from rival tribes. These “spoils of war” were sold to the European and Mediterranean brokers who transported and sold to New World buyers. (The news media tell us that even today on the African continent there are warring factions that take hostages and sell them into slavery.) The responsibility for slavery rests with both our black and white ancestors.

Forrest in the 1850's was a prosperous Mississippi plantation owner relying largely on slave labor. He was also part of a family-owned cotton brokerage in Memphis where he bought and sold cotton, cotton implements and cotton labor. One of many such businesses in that time and place. This activity was legal, supported by the judiciary, and accepted by the clergy. If Forrest is to be condemned and dishonored on this basis, how do we treat Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Madison, Jackson, Hardy Murfree, William Lytle and our African ancestors.?

So where do we go from here? The University President should take no further action that will put the matter in debate before the state historical commission. In due time, the University President should initiate dialogue with community leaders regarding the inevitable obsolescence of a campus structure.

Perhaps we could agree that the ROTC program is in need of a new facility. Perhaps the university and the community could work together and succeed in finding state and private funding for a new facility. Perhaps the current building could be “decommissioned” with appropriate ceremony and historic documentation. Perhaps new buildings are named for major private donors. Perhaps the project could be completed without disrespect to the memory and history of a local/regional hero and without confrontation. Perhaps...

MTSU Black Faculty and Staff Association

In the wake of recent racially controversial events that include the tragedy in Charleston, South Carolina, the nationwide killing of numerous unarmed African Americans by police officers, and the racially charged incidents experienced by St. Louis, Yale and Cornell universities, we believe it is appropriate to remove symbolic vestiges of our troubled racial past from all MTSU buildings.

Despite a decorated military record, the entire legacy of Nathan Bedford Forrest remains inseparably coupled with white supremacy. A slave trading human trafficker before the Civil War, Forrest fought to preserve the legal right to perpetually hold African Americans in inhuman bondage, he authorized the massacre of over 200 surrendered black United States army soldiers, and after the war, his personal celebrity legitimized and nationally proliferated the most notorious domestic terrorist organization in American history. The Ku Klux Klan (KKK) was established for the sole purpose of violently intimidating the formerly enslaved black population into permanently occupying an unambiguously subservient social status.

In addition to being the original national leader of the KKK, a group created to terrorize the African American community, in 1875, two years before his death, Forrest engaged in a business venture that relied on convict-lease laborers. Convict-lease programs operated as a quasi-slavery institution that economically exploited mostly black prisoners forcing them to repay arbitrary fines with uncompensated backbreaking labor. This program was granted to him through a contract with the state. Just like his pre-Civil War human trafficking career, Forrest's postwar entrepreneurial enterprises again relied upon the commercial exploitation of black bodies. Every aspect of Forrest's life, before, during, and after the Civil War, was dedicated to the violent preservation of white supremacy.

Like the racial legacy of Nathan Bedford Forrest, the timing and naming of the Forrest Hall building on MTSU's campus were both symbols of white supremacy. Named in 1954, in unapologetic opposition to the landmark Supreme Court Brown v. Board of Education decision (ruling educational segregation unconstitutional), administrators on campus sent a clear message to members of the middle Tennessee community and to the nation. This message was simply that, at the time, MTSU was hostile to educational integration. Thankfully, times have changed and MTSU's undergraduate population now reflects the demographic diversity of the state. However, Forrest Hall remains a painful reminder of this legacy of historical intolerance.

In 2016, when more than one in four MTSU students is nonwhite it is time to abandon the legacy of bigotry that Forrest Hall represents. The time has come to reject the hurtful name of a divisive individual who would have resented the current demographic diversity we celebrate on MTSU's campus. We propose that the ROTC Building be renamed Veterans Hall.

Sincerely,

The Murfreesboro Branch of the NAACP takes the position that the university should have the name of Forrest Hall changed. The membership agrees that a building representing the Confederate General Nathan Bedford Forrest should not be on any university campus building.

In 1968, I had been a student during the time of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s death and had been a part of the protest to remove the emblem of the Confederate General Forrest on the horse from the University Center wall led by Sylvester Brooks. Furthermore, the students were concerned about the image that was being portrayed around the campus in sports and as well as the mascot with the Raider outfit and horse.

In the 1960s, more African American students were beginning to attend the university following the opening in 1962 as well as to other International students. The first African American female, Mrs. Olivia Woods, who attended in 1962 is still residing in Rutherford County at the age of 95 and a member of Allen Chapel AME Church.

Middle Tennessee State University opened its doors to minorities prior to forced integration by the Rutherford County Schools. In 1968, downtown Murfreesboro had public businesses with the White Only/Colored Only signs posted to separate the races in waiting rooms, restrooms and water foundations. The young adults of the Murfreesboro community and the MTSU students began to protest businesses in the late 1960s and early 1970s following the sitting-ins in Nashville.

Special thank you was given to Coach Dean Hayes, MTSU Track Coach, who reached out to the Murfreesboro community by giving a scholarship to Robert Mallard for track, who attended Holloway High School. Coach Hayes solicited International students as well to come to Middle Tennessee State University. The university was changing and more minorities were willing to come to Murfreesboro for academics and to play sports.

More students voiced their concerns then, and the university made major changes in its mascot over the years because of the diverse campus. I had an opportunity to work with students in Social Work and the Murfreesboro community from 1976-78 for hands-on experiences with social issues and how to resolve them.

When we, as African Americans think of the name of Nathan Bedford Forrest, Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan (KKK), and how he massacred and murdered people of color at Fort Pillow in West Tennessee, which included men, women and children his name should not be honored at this institution of higher learning.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) stands with the students, faculty, staff, alumni and the community with changing the name of Forrest Hall. The NAACP and the AME Church are partners in the fight for equal justice for all regardless of their race or national origin.

On June 17 of 2015, Mother Emanuel AME Church in Charleston, South Carolina lost nine members of their congregation because the young man wanted a “Race Riot.” Praises to God, family members of the deceased showed him their true hearts by saying “we forgive you.” As a member of the African Methodist Episcopal (AME) Church, I had an opportunity to travel to Charleston, South Carolina last year and met some of the relatives. In my conversations, we observed that this young man passed over 100 churches from his home to get to Mother Emanuel AME Church during a Wednesday Bible Study.

His hate for a race of people different from his own causes all of us to rethink what we are allowing to continue here at Middle Tennessee State University. We are trying not to relive those dark days, but to learn from them and move forward as one for all regardless of race or national origin.

For those individuals who are not aware, Mother Emanuel AME Church is the oldest AME Church in the South. Its history has housed all civil rights leaders who have fought for changes in legislation to include better treatment for all people regardless of race and national origin.

South Carolina State Legislators and the Governor came together to remove their Confederate Flag from the state property and placed it in a museum because of the photos of the young man with the confederate flag. The pastor of Mother Emanuel AME Church then, Senator Pinckney, was a member of the South Carolina State Senate.

We, NAACP would like the Forrest Hall Task Force Committee to consider the request of the faculty, staff, students and alumni as well as the community to move forward by placing the name of Nathan Bedford Forrest and his military experiences in a museum or with the Center for Historic Preservation.

These eight officers paid the ultimate sacrifice so that we could come together tonight, without fear of reprisal or punishment, to openly voice our opinions, our concerns, and our support, and to exercise the freedoms held so dear by all Americans.

These eight commissionees and all other MTSU-ROTC graduates learned their tradecraft - that of leading our nation's sons and daughters in peace or in war - from classroom studies, practical exercises, and examples exhibited by their instructors as they developed and matured into part of the world's greatest military.

These eight, along with nearly 1500 other commissionees have passed through the halls and classrooms of Forrest Hall over its 60 plus years. We never questioned the building's name...what we knew and still know today is that history, good or bad, is the foundation we officers use to ensure that we do not make the same mistakes.

The Military Science Alumni Chapter members express their gratitude to the Task Force for this opportunity to present their majority's position that the name remain – Forrest Hall.

We do not present this paper to debate the good or bad of General Forrest or of the Civil War. The committee has on-board historians to correctly enlighten the committee on both. However the fact is that the army and the nation reconciled after the war. One effort in the healing process was the naming of ten United States Army posts after Confederate officers, including Army Posts Bragg, Hood, Polk, Rucker and Lee. Confederates were never labeled "traitors." That is a modern, legalistic interpretation. Culturally, we reconciled and accepted the battlefield results, while understanding that the motivations for fighting were complex and varied on both sides.

We do say that Forrest Hall is more than brick and mortar, more than just a building on campus.... it is a "rally point" for our alumni. A rally point, as used by the US Army is a place designated to reassemble and reorganize if forces become dispersed; a place to account for soldiers, disseminate information, and reestablish the chain of command. As our commissionees and graduates are assigned all over the world, we always know that we can come back to Forrest Hall for a safe and secure place, that harbors no ill will because of the name, but a place for our band of brothers and sisters who have lived, and died, defending this nation's freedom to call friendly ground.

Our Military Science Alumni Chapter members conducted a survey regarding the recommendations chartered by the committee. Of the 179 responses, 89% support the position that the name of Forrest Hall remain unchanged, 11% support changing the name of Forrest Hall or have no opinion on the matter. So our Chapter's recommendation to the committee is in support of the keeping the name – Forrest Hall.

At the first forum, it was asked if the Military Science cadets receive training influenced by GEN Forrest. Instruction, past and present, addresses the characteristics and tactics of military leaders throughout history. World War II's – GEN Patton, Desert Shield / Desert Storm's – GEN Schwarzkopf, and even Civil War's GEN Forrest. Besides classroom instruction, the ROTC Department conducts actual historical battlefield "field trips." For MTSU – Stones River and Chickamauga are two that are used. The cadets walk the battlefield discussing small unit leadership, the military decision making process, and ethics and values needed to lead. The instruction looks at all sides of leadership to help our future leaders do what is right, should they be put into real world situations like those they study. We learn from the experiences of others, their successes and mistakes, both on our side as well as those of our enemies. So yes, the importance of what Forrest did, good or bad, is part of the cadets' training.

And lastly, for some who say you can never come home, we the Alumni Chapter say you are wrong. We do...from wherever our political leaders send us: Vietnam, Korea, Central America, Iraq and Afghanistan. When we come home, we come home to Forrest Hall, where our professional lives began, and to remember and honor those eight from our ranks who gave their lives in defense of our great nation.

Distinguished members of the committee, again thank you for the opportunity present our position. Yours is a difficult, but important task.

Keep the name. Thank you.

President, MTSU

FROM: Derek W. Frisby
Chair, Presidential Task Force to Reconsider the Naming of Forrest Hall

RE: Recommendation of the Presidential Task Force to Reconsider the Naming of MTSU's Forrest Hall

In October 2015, you appointed a task force composed of university stakeholders to determine if a name change was necessary for MTSU's Forrest Hall. The task force was asked to provide one of three recommendations to the President: 1) to keep the name; 2) to keep the name with added historical context; or 3) to change the name. The task force conducted several public forums and then deliberated on the various issues concerning the building's name honoring Confederate cavalryman, Lieutenant General Nathan Bedford Forrest.

The task force recommends to change the name of Forrest Hall. This recommendation was reached by a majority of the task force members; however, a significant minority expressed their opinions that the name should remain or remain with context.

As we have discussed, if you accept the task force recommendation for a name change, then a waiver for such action must be requested pursuant to Tennessee Code Annotated, Title 4, Chapter 1, Part 4, "The Tennessee Heritage Preservation Act of 2016." The task force stands ready to assist in the preparation of a report to accompany this waiver request. Additionally, if you determine "to keep the name, but with added historical context," the task force is prepared to assist your office in determining the appropriate historical contextualization to be added.

It has been an honor and a privilege to serve as the chair of this distinguished panel. I believe each member has demonstrated an extraordinary dedication to this task. I relied extensively upon their constructive criticism, intellectual input, and collegiality during this process. The entire university staff accommodated our meetings and requests for information in a professional and efficient manner. Furthermore, I want to express my appreciation and admiration for the assistance of Jimmy Hart, director of MTSU News and Media Relations. He was an invaluable part of this team and often went above and beyond his assigned duties, and always in a manner consistent with our "True Blue" values.

I am available anytime to discuss the task force's recommendations if you need additional information or clarification.

Middle Tennessee State University
Peck Hall, Room 0260
Murfreesboro, TN 37132

Dear Dr. Frisby,

I deeply appreciate the service by the members of the task force, and you as the chair, in facilitating the discussion on the Forrest Hall name associated with the building that houses our Department of Military Science.

As you know, I appointed the task force and asked it consider whether the name of the military science building should be changed, retained or augmented with historical context. I am writing to confirm receipt of your letter reporting the task force's strong consensus, with duly noted objections of some, in support of changing the name.

It is clear that there are many wide-ranging and contradicting views about the life and legacy of Confederate Lt. Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest. I do not feel it is my role to discern the appropriateness or relevance of his actions prior, during or after the Civil War. It was appropriate, however, for me to assess whether the decision made in the middle of the 20th Century to name the building for General Forrest remains in our best interest in the second decade of the 21st Century.

And, in my view, the values and goals we share in 2016 as a comprehensive university with international reach are not best reflected by retaining a name affixed in 1958 when we were a small local college that rarely extended beyond our region. As such, I accept the task force's consensus recommendation and will forward it to TBR for consideration. If the Regents concur, it will go to the Tennessee Historical Commission or appropriate state agency for further review and consideration.

We now live in a time and circumstance that our predecessors perhaps could have never imagined. When Forrest Hall was dedicated in 1958, we were still Middle Tennessee State College and boasted an enrollment of just 2,539 students. We were decades away from the far-reaching and inclusive opportunities that would become our hallmark. And, as was common of that time, images and references of General Forrest were used routinely throughout the University and its activities.

A Tennessee Board of Regents Institution

As our university grew in size and stature, so did our awareness of the controversial connotation that our use of General Forrest and other Confederate symbols had upon our goal to mature into an institution with broader reach and scope. We began to discourage such iconography in the years that followed and sought other ways for the University community to express its identity.

Our institution today is the largest in the Tennessee Board of Regents system with an enrollment of almost 23,000 students. We recruit students and faculty from across the nation and world and many of our academic programs and industry partnerships attract global attention. We have 39 international partnerships in 18 countries. We must acknowledge our past but we must remain focused on our future.

I believe the names we affix to campus buildings should ideally add value, or at least be neutral, to our overriding responsibility to recruit and retain exceptional students and faculty. Further, when buildings and other elements are named after individuals, current state policy requires that the person or persons should have a clear connection to the institution as a student, alumni, faculty member, administrator, public official tied to our governance, or a donor whose generosity furthered the goals of the University. Forrest Hall is the only building on our campus named for an individual without such ties.

However, it is important to note that MTSU understands history should never be erased. We have supported research, programs and projects that tell the stories of how the Civil War transformed Tennessee. MTSU's Center for Excellence in Historic Preservation has helped place more than 400 interpretive Civil War markers across the state. In Murfreesboro, the university has assisted in developing displays that stand at the Rutherford County Courthouse and Oaklands Mansion, informing residents and visitors of General Forrest's actions.

The best place for commemorating heritage is on the hallowed ground where it occurred, and that is what MTSU has done. We remain committed to supporting fully these, and many other, important efforts on behalf of Tennessee's Civil War past.

In my examination of the military science building, I can find no reference to the general beyond his last name in the letters above the front door and on a small plaque in the yard that just reads, "Forrest Hall." If our intent in naming Forrest Hall was to educate our students about his historical impact and military contributions, we have most certainly failed in that regard.

Therefore, I have asked Dr. Carroll Van West, who serves as the Tennessee state historian as well as a distinguished member of our faculty, to develop a historical timeline, with primary source set, to be housed in the Albert Gore Research Center. This timeline will encapsulate the life, legacy and impact that General Forrest had upon our state, region and nation. I also have asked Dr. West that this timeline also explore the use and role of General Forrest's image by our University. By doing these things, we are putting history in a place and manner that better educates our students.

Finally, when I delivered the charge to the task force, I stressed it was most appropriate for me not to attend your meetings, since your duty was to hear diverse viewpoints of stakeholders and members of our university and local communities and deliver to me a recommendation for my consideration. However, I did view the proceedings by video and closely followed news and social media reports that emanated from the sessions.

While watching the video footage and reading the reports, I was reminded of the oft-cited observation that while our Freedom of Speech, guaranteed in the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, can be messy, restricting it can be messier. I was disappointed that certain moments at the public forums were unruly and disrespectful. But I also know that our freedom allows for such sharp discourse. Free speech covers views that you find disagreeable as much as it does for those views you embrace.

Please accept, and convey to your fellow task force members, my thanks for this valuable service to the University. This was a difficult, yet extremely valuable, process for our community.

Sincerely,

Sidney A. McPhee
President

BACKGROUND INFORMATION:

TBR Policy 4:02:05:01, Naming Buildings and Facilities & Building Plaques, vests the prerogative and privilege of naming of buildings for individuals or groups in the Board of Regents.

In October of 2015, President McPhee created a task force to study whether a name change was necessary for Forrest Hall, which is named for Confederate Lieutenant General Nathan Bedford Forrest. The task force, comprised of faculty, alumni, students and community members, conducted several public forums and then deliberated at length on the various issues concerning the name of the building. The task force recommended to President McPhee that the name of General Forrest be removed from the building and that the building be called "The ROTC Building". President McPhee has accepted the recommendation of the task force and submitted a request to the Board for approval of the renaming.

Earlier this year, the General Assembly enacted "The Tennessee Heritage Preservation Act of 2016" that prohibits the removal of a historic name, such as General Forrest's from a public building without the permission of the Tennessee Historical Commission. If the Board approves the request to remove the Forrest name, a petition for a waiver of the Act's prohibition must be submitted to the Commission.

SUBJECT: Building Renaming at Middle Tennessee State University

DATE: June 6, 2016

I have reviewed President Sidney McPhee's letter dated April 29, 2016, requesting that the structure housing the university's Army Reserves Officer Training Corps program at the Middle Tennessee State University Campus be renamed the "ROTC Building."

The building is designated for military science programs and is located at the main campus of Middle Tennessee State University, in Murfreesboro, Tennessee.

The Middle Tennessee State University naming committee met on April 21, 2016. They voted to approve this renaming and their request is in compliance with TBR Policy 4:02:05:01 - Naming Buildings and Facilities and Building Plaques. Based on the documentation submitted by Middle Tennessee State University, they have met the Tennessee Board of Regent policy requirements.

Mr. David Gregory, Acting Chancellor
Tennessee Board of Regents
1415 Murfreesboro Road, Suite 350
Nashville, TN 37217

Dear Chancellor Gregory:

In October 2015, a task force was created to study the naming of Forrest Hall on the campus of Middle Tennessee State University (attached). This task force was led by Dr. Derek Frisby, a Global Studies instructor, and was comprised of faculty, alumni, students and community members. Forrest Hall houses the University's Army Reserve Officers Training Corps program and is named after Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest.

On April 19, the task force announced its recommendation that the structure housing the university's Army Reserves Officer Training Corps program, Forrest Hall, be renamed. The task force held three public forums and two open deliberations in reaching a consensus for this recommendation. The public forums were held on December 1, February 24 and March 24, with the open deliberations on April 14 and April 19.

On April 28, I endorsed the task force's consensus recommendation and am requesting approval for the renaming of Forrest Hall. I believe the names we affix to campus buildings should at best add value, or at least be neutral, to our overriding responsibility to recruit and retain exceptional students and faculty.

Therefore, your consideration and support of this request to approve the renaming of Forrest Hall to the ROTC Building, the name of the building from 1954 to 1958, at the June Quarterly Board Meeting would be most appreciated.

Sincerely,

Public Notices (Non-Meeting)

- 10/6/2016 - MESSAGE NOTICE FOR WRITERS FOR POST-DEAL CUMMINGS CHANGE

PUBLIC NOTICE — MTSU PETITION FOR WAIVER
FORREST HALL NAME CHANGE

Middle Tennessee State University, a Tennessee Board of Regents institution, hereby gives public notice of its intention to petition the Tennessee Historical Commission for a waiver that would allow it to rename Forrest Hall, a building on its Murfreesboro campus built in 1954 and officially named for Confederate Lieutenant General Nathan Bedford Forrest in 1958, to the Army ROTC Building. The university, after appointing a task force of students, faculty, alumni and community members to consider the matter and after holding three public forums that allowed for broad input, determined in April 2016 that the name of the building no longer reflected the stated mission and goals of the institution and, therefore, there was a compelling public need to rename the structure. Further, it was determined the building was the only structure named for someone without a direct tie to the campus and that it lacked any historical information or context about its namesake. TBR approved a request by MTSU in June 2016 to rename the structure, as well as its intention to create a public timeline, drawn from primary source documentation, of Forrest's life and actions before, during and after the Civil War. Once MTSU's Petition for Waiver is filed, a copy of the petition and supporting documentation will be available at no cost upon written request to the Office of the University Counsel, MTSU, 1301 East Main St., 209 Cope Administration Building, Murfreesboro, TN 37132. These materials will also be available at: <http://www.mtsu.edu/forresthall/>.
